Goldberg Lauds U.S. And Israel Which Seek Freedom For Selves And The World

U. S. Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg received the 1961 Histadrut Humanitarian Award at a dinner given in his honour by the National Committee for Labor Israel. In accepting the award, in the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, Mr. Goldberg said: "Israel, like the United States, seeks freedom not only for itself but for all of the countries of the world."

"This is characteristic of our two nations, and of the free world community," he added, reports the New York Times. "Freedom is not the product of any political system; it is an inherent right of men everywhere, both those that now enjoy it and those that are denied it."

Mr. Goldberg approved of the different ways in which nations seek to attain freedom. "Freedom is the opposite of conformity," he said. "It is the unleashing of each individual talent . . . the recognition that each nation will base its means upon its own traditions, its own social structures, its own resources, and its own spiritual insights."

He condemned the "false humanitarianism of the totalitarian state" and expressed confidence that "the true humanitarianism of democracy will not only endure but prevail."

The Histadrut award, a bronze plaque, honored Mr. Goldberg for "outstanding efforts in fostering sympathetic understanding between the people of the United States and the people of Israel; and his warm encouragement to the cause of Histadrut, the Israel labor federation."

A tribute to Mr. Goldberg from President Kennedy was read to the 1,000 guests by Harry Van Arsdale, general chairman of the dinner and president of the New York City Central Labor Council. A. F. L.-C. I. O., President Kennedy praised Mr. Goldberg's work on behalf of Histadrut, says the New York Times. Among the speakers were Mayor Wagner, Israel Foreign Minister Golda Meir; George Meany, president of the A. F. L.-C. I. O.; Isaiah Avrech, American representative of Histadrut; and Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein, chairman of the National Committee.

Funds for a $6 million 1962 Israel Histadrut campaign will be sought among business and labor groups in the United States and Canada for various programs assisting Israel's pioneers and new immigrants.

Louis Segal, general secretary of the Farband Labor Zionist Order, assailed those "who would dissolve the Zionist movement." He asserted that organized Zionism had the potential "for becoming the leading force in American Jewish life because Zionism possesses the positive qualities of self-respect and creative Jewish living which the younger generation needs."

Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein, chairman of the committee, charged the Arab leaders "with direct responsibility for prolonging the misery of their fellow Arabs who now linger in refugee centers."

"If the Arab leaders had real compassion for their fellow Arabs, he said, "they would long ago have rehabilitated them with the not inconsiderable funds paid out by the United Nations for their relief."

Discovery Of Impressive Temple Outside Rome Supports Theory Prosperous Jewry Lived There By 139 B.C.

The existence of a Jewish community on the outskirts of ancient Rome was revealed recently by the chance discovery of a Jewish temple at Ostia, formerly the port of Rome at the mouth of the Tiber. Archaeologists attributed particular importance to the discovery, says the New York Times. They said it was the first evidence of Jewish colonies outside Palestine before the birth of Christ, found not merely on Roman territory but anywhere in Europe.

The Jewish community at Ostia existed as long ago as the first or second century before Christ, according to the archaeologists. There were Jewish colonies of great antiquity in Africa and particularly in Alexandria. The earliest recorded appearance of Jews in Rome dates to 146 B.C., when a delegation of Maccabees presented a gold shield to the Roman Senate and asked for protection by Rome against the Syrians, who were threatening Jerusalem.

It was not known until recently that at about the same time there was at least one permanent Jewish settlement within a few miles of the city. Prof. Anton Luigi Pietrogrande, superintendent of excavations in the area, said the temple was of "important proportions" and of "excellent workmanship." Its size and workmanship prove, it is said, that the temple served a large and prosperous Jewish community.

A prominent feature of the temple was a bas-relief on marble showing a seven-armed candelabrum. It represented the gold candelabrum in the Temple of Solomon that became generally known in Rome in the first century A. D. Titus took it as part of the booty after the sacking of Jerusalem. A Roman soldier with the candelabrum on his shoulder is shown in the sculptures that adorn the Arch of Titus in the Roman Forum.

The arms of the candlestick found carved in the Temple at Ostia are adorned with geometrical designs of squares and rhombuses. A stylized tree appears on the central upright arm, says the New York Times. On one side are an ear of wheat and an oval design thought to represent a loaf of bread. On the other side is a horn.

The first traces of the temple were found by workmen widening a road from the seashore to the new Rome International Airport at Fiumicino. At first, it was thought the traces were part of the ancient cemeteries that abound in the neighborhood.

Then the archaeologists uncovered a marble column two feet in diameter and forty feet tall. The column had a Corinthian capital.

By tradition, Ostia was founded by Ancus Martius, the mythical fourth king of Rome, who enlarged the city in the middle of the seventh century B.C. The Ostia he founded was on the seashore. It is now some miles inland because the Tiber has silted the whole area in twenty-five centuries.

The remains of the port of Claudius and other important Roman structures have been found not far from the new airport. The discovery of the Jewish temple, was immediately communicated to the Jewish community in Rome. The chief rabbi, Dr. Elio Toaf, announced the discovery.

The archaeological evidence of a Jewish temple and community at Ostia, the former port of Rome, supports a theory formulated three years ago that Jews lived near Rome by at least 139 B.C., said a historian of the Jewish Theological Seminary, in New York.

Dr. Gerson Cohen said that a Roman decree of 139 B.C., ordering the expulsion of Jews for engaging in missionary activities, had been thought until 1958 to apply to the expulsion of visitors from Asia Minor. The reinterpretation was made by Dr. Elias J. Bickerman, Professor of Ancient History at Columbia University, says the New York Times. A close study of the wording of the decree led to his deduction that the order applied to Jews living in Italy under Roman jurisdiction.

Biblical Scholar Denies Specific Connection Between Dead Sea Scrolls And Early Christians

There is "absolutely no evidence" tying early Christianity to the Dead Sea Scrolls or the religious community that inspired them, the head of America's leading group of Biblical scholars said.

Dr. Samuel Sandmel, president of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, said the scrolls represented "the greatest exaggeration in the history of biblical scholarship."

In a telephone interview from St. Louis, with the New York Times, some time ago, where he presided at the society's annual meeting, Dr. Sandmel said he was not denying that the scrolls were historically useful.

"What I am denying," he said, "is the high importance originally attached to them and the specific connection seen by some scholars between the scrolls and early Christianity."

Scholars have debated the significance of the scrolls since they were translated from the Hebrew and Aramic more than ten years ago.

The first of the scrolls was found in 1947 by a shepherd boy in a cave near the Qumran Wadi, a stream bed penetrating the cliffs on the western shore of the Dead Sea. Hundreds more have since been found in several other caves in the vicinity. They were apparently placed there by the Essenes, a Jewish religious sect that practiced communal living at Qumran about 2000 years ago.

The argument has centered on whether the sect's religious practices, which have some parallels in Christianity, were known to Jesus and Paul and were incorporated by them into their teachings.

The scrolls were first thrown open to living-room debate by Edmund Wilson, the writer and critic, who wrote a popular book called "The Scrolls From the Dead Sea" in 1955.

"Edmund Wilson's book gave the average person the impression that now we know all the answers to early Christianity," Dr. Sandmel declared. "His book is responsible, more than any other, for the public delusions about what is in the scrolls."

Apprised of the comment, Mr. Wilson demurred. By telephone from his home in Wellfleet, Mass., he said:

"Biblical scholars almost without exception are committed to one point of view or to another; to show how different the Gospels are from the scrolls; or show how much alike they are.

"The point is that there are many resemblances that are unmistakable between Christian literature and the pre-Christian literature of the scrolls. There are things in the scrolls which appear to lead up to Jesus, and which are found in the New Testament. And there are many things in the scrolls that are not found in the New Testament."

Much additional research has been done and many controversies have arisen since Mr. Wilson's book was published, says the New York Times. "I'm hoping to bring the whole thing up to date," he said, "and deal with all these questions that have been raised."

In his presidential address to the society, Dr. Sandmel, who is also provost of Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, in Cincinnati, Ohio, discounted resemblances between the scrolls and the Gospels.

There is no reference to Jesus or Paul or events of the early Christian era in the Dead Sea Scrolls, Dr. Sandmel pointed out. So any links between the Essene beliefs and Christian teachings are based on speculations and "parallelisms," he said.

The inordinant search for parallels and similarities between the sectarian writings in the scrolls and the writings in the Gospels has led to great exaggerations, he commented.

These, he said, include assertions that John the Baptist was a member of the Dead Sea community; that Jesus might have been a member, and that most of the doctrines of Jesus and Paul might have come from the teachings found in the sectarian documents of the scrolls.

"The distinctively Christian is not found in the scrolls" Dr. Sandmel said in the interview. "Where there is overlapping, it is on that which is common property of all forms of Judaism, including the form from which Christianity grew."

Since some members of the Essene sect were thought to have lived in the towns in which Jesus taught, it has been suggested that, at the very least, he must have known of their existence. Dr. Sandmel was asked if he agreed that this was a likely possibility.

"Jesus might have made a trip to Rome and back, but there is no evidence that he did," he replied. "It's reasonable that he might have had contact with the Essenes, but there is no direct evidence that he did."

"The Qumran doctrines give more information than we had about the Judaism of the time of Jesus," Dr. Sandmel said, reports the New York Times. "But we already had much of this information. The stuff that could have made the scrolls as exciting as alleged just wasn't and isn't there."

The marriage of Miss Edna Gareh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Gareh, 4305 Jean Brillant Avenue, to Victor Mashaal, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Mashaal, 8 Courcelette Avenue, took place at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, on April 15, at six o'clock. Rabbi Allan M. Langner officiated, assisted by Cantor H. Gisser. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was gowned in white peau de soie, appliqued with Alencon lace and seed-pearl-beads; cut with a fitted bodice; a square, scalloped neckline; short sleeves; and full skirt, with a bow at the front, ending in a long train. Her veil of tulle illusion was draped to a matching, pill-box hat, and she carried a prayer book with white orchids and stephanotis. Mrs. Naaman Livnat, sister of the bride, as matron of honour, wore an ice-blue, peau-de-soie gown, made with a blouson bodice; and its own bolero, appliqued with matching lace and seed-pearl-beads; also a matching pill-box hat; and carried a cascade of white carnations. Miss Sue Mashaal, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, wore a pink, lace gown, made with a full skirt; and a pink pill-box hat; and carried a semi-cascade of white carnations. Cathy Mashaal, niece of the groom, as flower girl, wore a white, taffeta party dress, and a matching headdress; and carried a nosegay of white and blue carnations. Albert Mashaal was best man for his brother. The ushers were: Ammon Gareh, brother of the bride; Emil Mashaal, brother of the groom; Albert Levy, Fred Shiri, Emil Daniel, and Franklyn Daniel, cousins of the groom. Ronald Mashaal, nephew of the groom, was page boy. The wedding decorations consisted of white, blue, and gold-coloured carnations, roses, and gladioli. There was orchestra music. Four hundred guests were received. Mrs. Gareh, the bride's mother, was in a gold-coloured, lace gown, appliqued with seed-pearl-beads, set over matching satin; and had a matching, pill-box hat. Mrs. Mashaal, the groom's mother, wore a pale-blue, lace sheath, embroidered with seed-pearl-beads, and a hat of that shade. Their corsages were of gold-coloured orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Mashaal spent their wedding trip travelling in the British West Indies, the bride departing in a beige, boucle wool suit. They have taken up residence at 575 Glengarry Avenue. Here for the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. Naaman Livnat, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. J. Daniel, and Matilda, Shlome, and Meyer; Mr. and Mrs. G. TORONTO MARRIAGES

AXLER-MARGLES

The marriage of Miss Ruth Elaine Margles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Margles, 2515 Bathurst Street, and of Cobourg, Ont., to Joseph Lawrence Axler, son of Mrs. Augusta Axler, 2515 Bathurst Street, and the late Abraham Axler, was solemnized on Tuesday, April 3, at half-past six o'clock, at the Beth Sholom Synagogue, by Rabbi David Monson, assisted by Cantor Henry Wahrman, at a candlelight ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a period gown of white Italian Duchesse peau d'ange. The gown was fashioned with long, lily-pointed sleeves; and the bodice and bouffant skirt, which ended in a chapel train, were appliqued with Alencon lace encrusted with pearl beading. Her headdress was a rose of silk petals, beaded in pearl-beads; which held her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a white bible, adorned with a cascade of baby orchids and trails of stephanotis and ivy. Miss Molly Kuretsky was the maid of honour. She wore a ball gown of golden-haze-toned Duchesse peau d'ange; fashioned with a bell-shaped skirt and a matching jacket of Swiss Guipure lace; and had a matching pillbox and carried a semi-cascade of Talisman roses. The best man was Sidney Axler, brother of the groom. The ushers were: Harold Margles, brother of the bride; David Axler, brother of the groom; Lawrence Tavalin, Sydney Palmer, Sydney Caplan, David Weiss, and Edwin Kasden. The sanctuary held white and yellow chrysanthemums; and bright red gladioli. A dinner and reception took place at the Synagogue. Mrs. Margles, the bride's mother, was attired in a champagne-coloured ball-gown of peau de soie; styled with a bell-shaped skirt, draped to one side, and appliqued with corded material, embellished with pearl and crystal beads; and she had a matching headpiece; and a corsage of Cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Axler, the groom's mother, chose a lagoon-blue, brocaded ball-gown; styled with a square neckline; and a panel, flowing from the shoulder, to form a large pouff; and she had a matching tulle illusion pillbox; and had a purple orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawrence Axler spent their wedding trip in Nassau, The Bahamas, and Miami Beach, Florida. The bride departed in a pale pink Italian wool suit; and white coat; with black accessories and a pink orchid. They will reside at 21 Mayfair Avenue.

MONTREAL MEETINGS

★An audience of 1500 people filled Chevra Kadisha Bnai Jacob Synagogue to celebrate the 14th anniversary of the State of Israel, sponsored by the Combined Montreal Zionist Organizations. Aryah Ben-Eliazer, the Deputy Speaker of the Israel Knesset, who was introduced by Pinhas Eilav, Israel Consul General in Montreal, was the speaker. He harshly criticized the U.N. Security Council for maintaining silence despite often repeated threats of the Arab States "to destroy Israel", a fellow U.N. member. He said that Israel, as a member of the U.N., has never shirked its responsibilities and obligations to the Charter, but was let down by the recent action of the Security Council in the Syrian crisis. Fred Packer, chairman of the Eastern Region, of the Zionist Organization of Canada, presided. A religious service was sung by Cantor Joshua H. Rosenzweig, assisted by Chevra Kadisha choir, led by Louis Burko, its director. The official and personal greetings of the Israel Consul General and the Consulate Staff were extended by Mr. Eilav; Rabbi S. M. Zambrowsky, chairman of Mizrachi Hapoel-Hamizrachi Organization of Canada, gave his message in Yiddish. The City of Montreal official message from Mayor Jean Drapeau saluted "this little state dear to the hearts of all our citizens Jewish and non-Jewish alike".

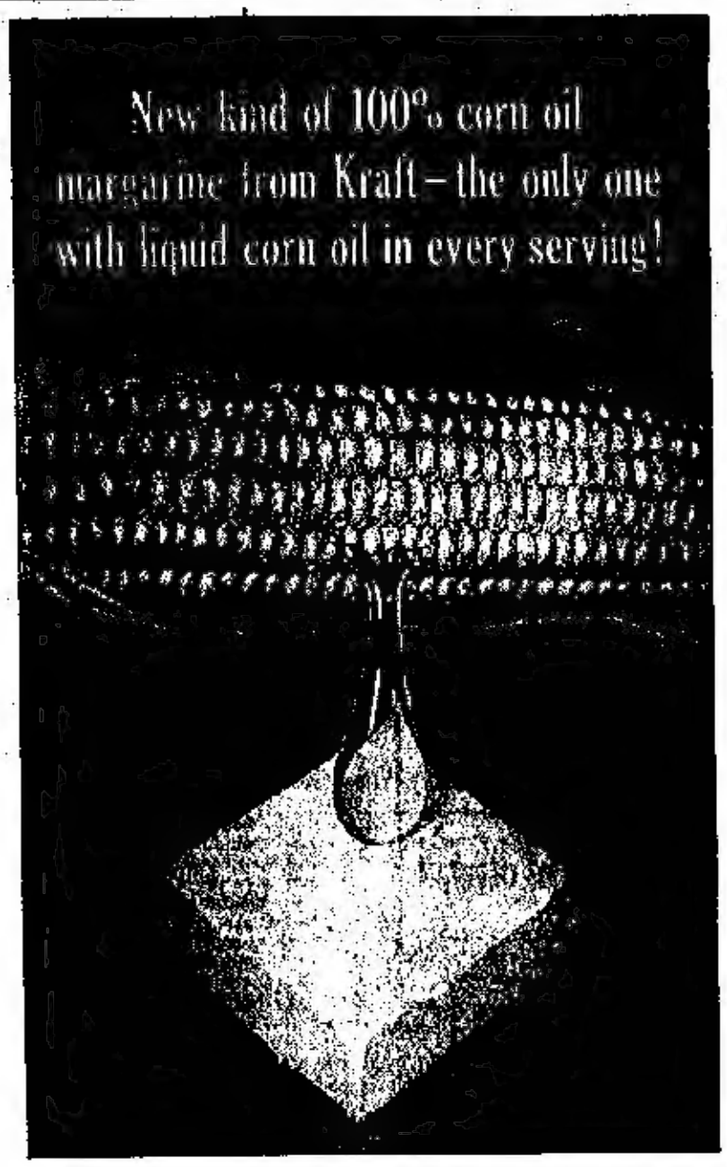
Strauss, 805 Wilder Avenue, and a pupil of the Jewish People's Schools, was named provincial winner in the Junior Art category of the Brooke Bond Travel and Educational Awards. Harold L. Keen, president, of Brooke Bond Canada Limited, stated that 200,000 Canadian students, from Newfoundland to the Yukon, entered the competition. The Junior Art subject was "My Dream". Charles F. New kind of 100% corn oil margarine from Kraft—the only one with liquid corn oil in every serving!



You can't see it. Or taste it. But that pure liquid corn oil in every serving is important to you and your family.

Because it is liquid corn oil that many doctors recommend to help reduce saturated fats in today's diets.

Ordinary corn oil margarines contain no liquid corn oil. But Kraft DeLuxe is made of partially hardened and liquid corn oil.

And new DeLuxe has the delicate flavor Kraft is famous for!

Isn't this the best 100% corn oil margarine for your family?

Pleads For Family Reunion; Upholds Group Migration Right

A vigorous defense of the right of group migration, coupled with a plea for special consideration of the problem of family reunion, was made by a World Jewish Congress spokesman before the U.N. Subcommission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities at U.N. headquarters in New York. Dr. Maurice L. Perlzweig, Permanent Representative of the World Jewish Congress at the United Nations, challenged the view of some members that only individuals could claim the right to emigrate and that it did not cover group migration. He pointed out that if this criterion were consistently applied it would undermine most of the rights listed in the Universal Declaration, and more particularly the right of association.

Dr. Perlzweig was speaking on a preliminary report by Judge José D. Inglés, of the Philippines, and said that the Rapporteur had performed a service of great value to the international community and in particular to those who deal with the problem of migration. He emphasized that the proposals in the report were neither impossible nor utopian. In a large part of the world, including North and South America, Western Europe, some East-European countries and many African and Asian states, the problem of securing the right to emigrate can scarcely be said to exist.

The countries which acknowledge and safeguard these rights, the WJC leader noted, have in no way suffered, and those countries that have placed no obstacle in the way of coming and going of their citizens, have not visibly been affected by contacts with other social systems and ideologies. What was now being asked was simply that other countries, who have hitherto hesitated to permit emigration, should profit by this example and respect the right to emigrate embodied in the Universal Declaration.

Dr. Perlzweig urged that if the recommendations finally be accepted by the Subcommission, special consideration should be given to the problem of the reunion of families. He said that it was a fact of the contemporary world that many thousands of people belonging to special ethnic and religious groups were moving from the countries of their residence to new places of settlement. This applied not only to Jewish communities but to a number of other ethnic and religious groups. This was one of the legacies of a period of war and revolutionary change. They were leaving under the impact of conditions which had made it impossible for them to maintain their cultural and religious traditions, or because there was no longer place for them under changed conditions.

Dr. Perlzweig asked that the recommendations should include a plea to governments to facilitate the restoration of the unity of families broken by this migration and this should be done on purely humanitarian grounds.

He said that some governments had made a notable contribution in this respect, and cited in particular the case of Poland which had dealt with it with great human insight. While it had done everything possible to facilitate the re-establishment of the life of communities broken by war and massacre, it had realized that often a new life was possible only in a new land.

He drew attention to the practice of some governments, as noted by Judge Inglés, compelling their citizens to abandon their nationality as the price of emigration. Not only did this practice create great hardships but it conflicted with the repeatedly expressed views of the international community against the creation of statelessness. While this practice might be tolerable in cases where the emigrant was certain of obtaining a new nationality either immediately or in the near future in his new land of settlement, there were thousands who were received in other lands where naturalization was either difficult or virtually impossible. He proposed that the recommendations should urge governments not to insist on a surrender of nationality in such cases, and to bear in mind the principle embodied in the Universal Declaration that everyone has a right to a nationality.

While Dr. Perlzweig hoped that all these rights would one day be protected by a proposed Covenant on Human Rights, it was unrealistic in the light of the present situation to expect such a Covenant to be widely accepted, or even completed for many years. In the meantime, the recommendations of the Subcommittee, even though they were not supported by legal sanctions, would have great weight with governments and would lend much needed support to those who were working with governments to secure respect for the right to emigrate on humanitarian grounds.

Urges All Jewish Branches To Unite To Save Jews In Orient

Rabbi Edward T. Sandrow, president of the Rabbinical Assembly, called upon all trends of American religious Jewry to unite in saving the pockets of Jewish survival in the Orient which are going through a slow disintegrating process. He returned from a seven-week visit to Jewish servicemen and communities in the Pacific area, and said it could have great meaning if the Jewish religious groupings in America pooled their resources and supplied these specks of community life with direction and hope.

"There is one idea that I was determined to express as soon as I returned, and that was: 'Let us carry on our polemics, our partisan divisions, and our philosophic loyalties to our hearts' content, but when it comes to saving Jewish lives for Judaism, let us mature to the point where we have unity, absolute unity!'"

The Rabbinical Assembly is the international association of Conservative rabbis. Rabbi Sandrow is the leader of Congregation Beth El, of Cedarhurst, L.I. He conducted a retreat for Jewish chaplains in Tokyo. "Jews are economically secure, but spiritually they are gasping for breath," Rabbi Sandrow reported. "There are no teachers, no rabbis, no organized Jewish activities except on a social basis and what is contributed extra-curricularly by American Jewish chaplains."

He said he failed to find in Tokyo those Japanese who are clamoring for conversion to Judaism, as reported recently in dispatches from that country. He reported that there is a Jewish Community Center in Tokyo with a membership of about 180 families. "The synagogue is situated within the Center premises and is most adequate for religious services and study. Jewish spiritual life, however, is weak."

In Hong Kong, there is a small Jewish community with a synagogue built some 80-odd years ago. Here, too, Judaism is primarily a building which shelters Jews who huddle together for psychological protection. There is a handful of Jews in Bangkok, some of them military and State Department personnel. Judaism is almost non-existent in this land of Buddhist shrines and imitation beauty. Rabbi Sandrow said: "India has a fairly large Jewish community, and it is good to note that the United Synagogue of America, the organization of Conservative congregations, has made warm friends for our movement here. But Indian Jewry, the Bene Israel, is scattered, craves leadership, and is an infinitesimal enclave in a large, over-populated continent."

Rabbi Sandrow said that wherever he went, there were refugees, in the fetid slums of Hong Kong, in the baked sand and cold nights of New Delhi, Chinese, Tibetans, Russians of World War I and II vintage, and Jews everywhere. He found a "brooding over war and violence and death. There is so much poverty and hunger in Hong Kong and India. It is difficult to witness struggling masses, knowing the resources and wealth in this world, without doubting, on occasion, the fact that man is rational and humane.

"Since my return, I cannot push out of my consciousness the sight of so much human suffering. There is so much good the world could do which it is only doing piecemeal, because of selfishness and drive for power. It may be naivete, but I believe that if East and West could give meanings and content to the ethic of our spiritual and democratic heritage, the madness of war and degradation of human personality could end."

West German Police Ask W.J.C. Aid To Find Nazi Killers On "Harvest Holiday"

To the Nazis in charge of the labor camps in the Lublin district of Poland, November 3 and 4, 1943, were the Harvest Holiday (Erntefest). To 42,000 Jews in those camps, November 3 and 4, 1943, were the final horrible hour. At least eight members of the Lublin Gestapo have been arrested by the West German police and, together with others, charged with participation in the murder of the Jews in the district of Lublin in general and the Harvest Holiday massacre, in particular.

Hundreds of other Nazi camp officers are sought in connection with the murder of the Jews in the Lublin district (the counties of Biala Podliaska, Chelm, Radzyn, Zamosc, Krasnystaw, Bilgaraj, Hrubieszow, Janow-Lubelski, Pulawy). The German Public Prosecutors in Wiesbaden and Hanover have asked the World Jewish Congress in New York for help in finding witnesses to testify against eleven Nazis now held, and to provide information that might lead to the apprehension of others, the whereabouts of many of whom are unknown.

The Wiesbaden authorities have completed the first stage of investigation into the activities of the following eight men:

(1) SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Georg Lothar Hoffmann, criminal commissioner and chief of the Jewish Section of the Gestapo;
(2) SS-Obersturmfuehrer Hermann Josef Worthoff, criminal commissioner and Jewish Referent of the Gestapo;
(3) SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Fritz Stoecker, Chief of Section III of the Lublin Office of the Commissioner of the Security Police;
(4) SS-Untersturmfuehrer Dr. Harry Georg Sturm, staff member of the Lublin Security Police Commander;
(5) SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Ewald Heinrich Biegelmeyer, Chief of Section III of the Office of the Lublin Security Police Commander;
(6) Criminal Commissioner in Lublin district and SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Gotthard Schubert;
(7) Police Commissioner for Zamosc and district, SS-Obersturmfuehrer Bruno Wilhelm Meiert;
(8) Criminal Commissioner for Chelm and district and SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Walter Hess.

The Public Prosecutor of Hanover who is investigating the murders in the county of Hrubieszow, is seeking evidence, in particular, against the following three Nazis:

(1) The SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Helmut Altmann;
(2) The SS-Untersturmfuehrer Adolf Waldner;
(3) The SS-Untersturmfuehrer Max Stoebner.

These men are accused of having shot, gassed, or otherwise killed, or participated in the murder of, tens of thousands of Jews, Poles, and Russian prisoners of war from October 1941 to July 1944. The Harvest Holiday massacre involved 42,000 Jews in Trawniki, Poniatowa, Majdanek, and other camps.

Anyone who has any knowledge about these and other Lublin district criminals should get in touch with Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, director of the Institute of Jewish Affairs, World Jewish Congress, 15 East 84th Street, New York 28, N. Y.
